SEE THE TRAINS — The fair may be over but the Iron Horses remain at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds. Tucked away in an isolated corner of the grounds, the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society's Southern California Chapter has more than a nostalgic attachment to its collection of seven engines which sit patiently outside the transplanted Arcadia depot. Upland council delays rent control decision

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

Upland's City Council put off adopting a rent control measure Wednesday pending the outcome of a court ruling on such legislation, and urged tenants of Upland Meadows mobile home park to resume negotiating over rent increases before they would consider creating rental laws.

After nearly two hours of often acrimonious testimony by Upland Meadows residents demanding rent control to ward off pending hikes, the council surmised that the problem may be isolated in that park and not affect the city's five others.

Only 13 of about 130 present said they were residents of parks other than 222-space Upland Meadows on Foothill Boulevard. Of the 13 that spoke in support of rent regulation, only two were non-Meadows residents.

Councilman Al Canestro described coach owners as a "bunch of irritated people" and Upland Meadows' manager Daniel W. Tenn as unable "to see the writing on the wall."

Canestro pointed out that Tenn made an 11th-hour compromise on rent hikes before the hearing opened.

"Wouldn't it be nice if this happened two months ago," he asked, when a combined space rental increase of 31 percent over a three-year lease contract was proposed at Upland Meadows Mobile Estates in June and catalyzed pleas for rent control.

Both management and coach owners were criticized for being "unreasonable" by Councilwoman Dina Hunter. She described a two-sided dilemma, where mobile home residents "cannot deal with continual rent increases in perpetuity." She sympathized with park owners, saying "they, too, have not realized a fair rate of return" on their investment.

The council established a committee to examine laws enacted by other cities that have withstood legal tests, awaiting both an opinion by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals on another city's ordinance and recommendations on rent control ordinances next month by the League of California Cities.

Upland presently has no ordinances regulating rents. A call for controls had not surfaced in the city before, nor had residents of parks other than Upland Meadows complained of rent gouging, City Manager Lee Travers said.

Cries for rent stabilization in mobile home parks have mushroomed in surrounding West Valley cities.

City settles discrimination suit

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

Upland paid a $15,000 settlement to a former maintenance worker discharged in 1977, who charged the city with illegally discriminating against him because of a minor physical handicap.

The payment was made by the city in July before a ruling could be made on the merits of Jack G. Raney's accusation, filed on his behalf by the state Department of Fair Employment and Housing.

Raney's is the first discrimination claim paid by the city, personnel director Mary Ann Reiss said. Five claims have been filed in the last 15 years. His was the only one where an accusation was actually filed, she said.

Investigation of Raney's claim was delayed in a backlog of cases, labor officials said.

Raney, now 24, of Upland, had worked the first three months of 1977 as a tree trimmer. He fed limbs into a grinder, and performed his job satisfactorily, city personnel records show.

He was terminated in April of 1977 because of a life-long visual impairment known as exophoria-tropia, a disease that weakens eye muscles and occasionally causes double vision.

"A number of depositions" from doctors contended Raney's eye condition did not impair his job performance, Robert Barnes, staff attorney for the state office, said.

If the problem exists "since early childhood, as his had, it can be adjusted by closing one eye," Barnes said. "He learned (distances) through experience."

The attorney said, "the most dangerous thing he did was shove the limbs into the grinder." Eyesight was less important than acquiring the tactile technique of pushing the limb in and getting the hand out.

The city disagreed. Raney's condition threatened his and other employees' safety, and created possible liability, Reiss said.

Sol Pavlosky, administrator of the state agency's San Bernardino office, said several attempts were made to settle the case informally with the city. "When these efforts were unsuccessful, the state agency filed an official accusation..." in February of 1981.

The charge asked the city to reinstate Raney in his job, credit him with all lost seniority, provide back pay plus interest, cover any financial losses due to cancellation of employee benefits, pay the costs of expenses incurred in pursuing the complaint and pay compensatory damages for his emotional suffering.

Negotiations resumed and a settlement proposed to avoid expensive litigation costs, Reiss said.

The city admitted no fault in agreeing to the settlement, attorney Barnes said.

Party benefits scholarship fund

The annual luncheon and card party of the Upland Woman's Club will be held at noon Saturday at the Upland Woman's Clubhouse with a "Japanese Garden Party" theme being featured for the Nurse's Scholarship Fund benefit.

Celesta Scott Walters and Marjorie Bundgard are co-chairmen of the fund-raising party, which will feature tables set with dwarf trees, fans, Japanese scene tallies and score pads. Lanterns and screens, statuary and greenery will create a garden-like background under the direction of Evedna Jarvis.

Other committee chairmen for the event are: Rachel Bissett, kitchen and luncheon; Helen Nylander, tickets; Pat Davidson, publicity; Ethel Parsons, dining room; Mazie Conway, general prizes; and Mrs. Walters and Mrs. Bundgard, table prizes.

The public is invited and reservations should be made today by calling 985-7404.

Study to look at private industry running dumps

The county Board of Supervisors approved a $20,000 contract Monday for an engineering study to help prepare a pilot project to determine if private industry can do a better job of disposing of solid waste than the county.

SCS Engineers received the contract for engineering services to develop plans, bid specifications and contract documents for pilot landfill operations.

The board appointed a solid waste task force in March to review whether private industry could more efficiently handle solid waste, and the task force recommended that a study be pursued.

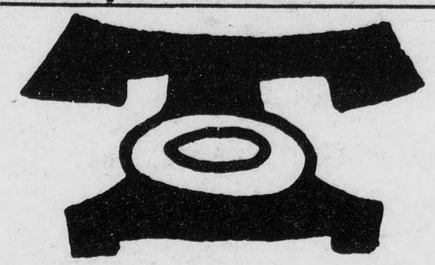

In the West Valley, the county runs the Milliken Landfill in Ontario.

John Shone, deputy county administrator for public works, said the contract would cover consideration of several sites instead of just one site as originally suggested.

Local Supervisor Robert Townsend said the county has never provided comprehensive figures on the true cost of county operations needed for comparison with the cost under private enterprise.

Along with the operating cost, the county needs information on the cost of land needed for future landfill operations and the interest cost on such investments, he said.

Shone said land costs change rapidly in developing areas, such as the area around the Milliken Landfill. However, he added that the information is available as "nearly as you can get it" and would be provided.

Park opens with improvements left by US Festival

By JIM MARXEN
Staff Writer

Glen Helen Regional Park, site of the three-day US Festival, has reopened. It is still undergoing renovation that will restore it to a condition more suitable to picnickers than a throng of rock fans.

Left behind by the UNUSON Corp., sponsors of the festival, were a variety of improvements including drinking fountains, irrigation lines and a 57-acre ampitheater that could be a moneymaker for the county in the future.

Kathy Petsadiotes, county regional park liason to UNUSON, said the company has nearly completed its cleanup work and will begin reseeding the grass bowl shortly.

But negotiations are continuing over what will remain behind when UNUSON pulls out of the park, she said.

The company spent between $2.5 million and $3 million to dress up the huge regional park near Devore — spending nearly $300,000 on the concert bowl.

As part of the agreement with the county, Petsadiotes said, UNUSON promised to reseed the area, replant trees dug up for the concert and continue watering the new foliage until seasonal rains take over.

UNUSON used a massive portable irrigation system to green up the concert bowl prior to the Labor Day Festival.

An underground system stretching ten miles long will be reinstalled to aid the seeding of the amphitheater, UNUSON officials said.

In addition, the company plans to drain and cement one of the park's lakes to create a permanent swimming area.

John Michaelson, administrative analyst for the county, said the county has "nearly exhausted" a $115,000 planning fund established when UNUSON first contracted for the site.

But, he added, the county has received $295,000 secured by "first call" on ticket sales and another $125,000 for work during the festival.

The county also gave UNUSON a $105,000 credit for improvements against a half million dollar rental fee, Michaelson said.

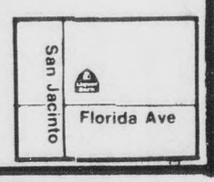

But all county costs associated with the festival have yet to be tallied.

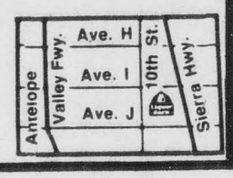

An agreement with UNUSON calls for the company to recompense the county for expenses incurred.

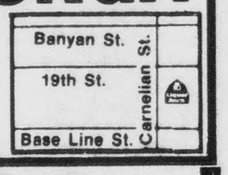

"We're still collecting the information on that," Michaelson said.

College trustees nix pact with fund-raiser

By NANCY WALLACE
Staff Writer

Chaffey Community College District trustees postponed the administration's quest for gifts and donations to the college as they rejected last week a proposed contract with resource development specialists Klaus Kleber and Associates of Glendora.

The week before, the board members reviewed Kleber's proposal to bring private dollars to the district and voiced no objections. Last week, the objections were multiple.

Several trustees said they were concerned with the price tag, a minimum of $2,650. At a July meeting, the board approved a $1,500 contract with Hoffland and Associates to develop outside funding for the college, but that firm was unable to meet its obligations and cancelled the contract. Board members wanted to know why the same service now cost more.

Superintendent-President Sam Ferguson explained that Kleber has planned a more involved fund-raising proposal using more staff time, and so found it necessary to charge more than Hoffland.

Board President Sandra Garner complained specifically about the contract's provision to aliot the firm travel and telephone expenses. Business Manager Don Sorsabal explained that consulting and attorney firms pass on such expenses as standard practice. Nevertheless Garner insisted she could not give a firm carte blanche. "I think that's a little outrageous," she said.

New trustee Tom Garnella noted he objected to paying for the firm's services before rendered. He urged staff to return at the next meeting with a contract correcting the unlimited expense account and the advance payment. (Garnella was appointed to the board last month and therefore was ineligible to vote.)

Trustees didn't pinpoint any problems in Kleber's proposal, only directing staff to revise the contract with Kleber's firm.

Kleber's tentative proposal was to develop a program to raise funds for Chaffey College from foundations, businesses, special interest groups and philanthropic individuals. The first fund-raising deadline set would be the college's 100th anniversary on March 17. Kleber said $250,000 would be a realistic expectation.

Cal Poly Pomona breaks ground for a $3 million office building

A groundbreaking ceremony Monday for Cal Poly Pomona's nearly $3 million University Office Building celebrated a 10-year effort to secure funding by California legislators and university administrators.

The new center on the eastern edge of the university's central quadrangle will provide 140 offices for faculty, administrative and support staff as well as 15 additional offices for clerical personnel.

Funding for the facility was first requested from the state in 1972 and has been sought every year since.

The new building will replace 11 "temporary" trailers placed on the campus in the 1960s to serve as faculty offices.

An additional reason to celebrate, President Hugh O. La Bounty said, is that this is one of only three major construction projects approved by the state in the 1982-83 budget for the 19-campus system of the California State University.

The building is also the largest of the three projects approved for the university system.

The groundbreaking was attended by several state legislators who had supported the university's bid to secure funding for the new building.

The 35,700-square-foot structure will have entrances on all four sides plus a breezeway on each floor. There will be 2½ floors with the ground level conforming to the natural slope of the site.

The building will have a central, open courtyard with outside balconies on each floor providing exterior access to most of the offices.

Completion is expected by next fall, according to architect Gin Wong.

Q. If a child knocks a tooth completely out, can it be saved?

A. Yes in many cases, but it must be taken care of quickly. If possible wipe the tooth free of dirt and place it back in its socket. If the tooth is not back in place within twenty minutes the chances of a successful reimplantation are reduced. If you aren't able to replace the tooth, wrap it in a damp cloth, or have the child place it under his tongue, and take him to the dentist immediately. The tooth will be treated and replaced in the mouth with some type of brace to secure it.

Bowlathon to benefit local blind

A White Cane Bowlathon to benefit blind and sight-handicapped persons will be staged Oct. 9 by the Pomona Host Lions Club.

Bowlers — club members, their wives, children and friends — will gather at 1 p.m. at the LandmarkBowl, 1750 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, to begin the annual event.

The club raised more than $4,000 last year. Its members have set their goal to top that amount this year, said Ora Lampman, club president.

Each bowler has obtained pledges from sponsors who agreed to pay a specific amount of money for each point chalked up by the bowler. The bowler's highest score out of three games will be used to calculate the sponsor's contribution.

For example, a sponsor who pledged 5 cents per point would pay a total of $7 for a high game score of 140 points.

Donations are tax deductible and each sponsor will be given a receipt for the donation.

Sponsors are invited to attend and groan as scores inch upward, said Bernard Ousley, publicity chairman.

Proceeds will be used to transport local blind and sight-handicapped residents to the Braille Institute in Los Angeles for special training and to provide eye examinations and glasses for local children.

The Lions Club has supported programs for the sight handicapped since 1951. The Bowlathon replaces the club's previous White Cane fund-raising efforts which involved soliciting funds from donors in public places.

Persons wanting to support the program as sponsors may call co-chairmen Vern Viatieri, 629-1306, or Pete Peterson, 624-0425.

Coin Club meeting held Saturday

The Pomona Valley Coin Club will hold its next meeting Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of the San Gabriel Valley, 2111 Bonita Ave. corner of D and Bonita, La Verne.

Membership in the Pomona Valley Coin Club is open to all ages interested in coin collecting. Regular meetins are held the first Saturday of each month. These meetings feature educational talks by well known California Numismatists. In addition, the club has a monthly coin auction.

The public is invited to attend the meetings. Park and admission are free. For more information about the club, write to P.O. Box 36, Pomona, Ca. 91766 or call 984-9698.
